

Once I was a young professional

Jitske Fastenau

High Tech NL is organizing interactive company visits, international study tours and large scale events for more than 5 years now. This program, set up for Young Professionals in the field of high-tech industry, is popular by both participants and hosting companies. Looking back on these events, the time has come to meet some 'old' young professionals. Recently, we met Jitske Fastenau who worked for quite a while at Vanderlande Industries. After various working experiences, she founded her own company. Her objective is to support young professionals to bridge the gap between study and professional life !

“8 years a young professional. What a time it was! Many exciting lessons and experiences. I started my career filled with enthusiasm and drive. Fresh out of university I was lucky to start at a great company, granting me the space to develop my talents, experience, try and try again sometimes. During the start I was in search of a goal and purpose for my work and career. How great it is that that search now resulted in starting a new career as entrepreneur. I recently started Brick-method, for young people finding and executing their ambition. Young professionals are driven and give a refreshing energy for companies in search of the next market success. It is great to support and train young people to trust their talents and build skills to keep that fire going. For many new young professionals who support their companies into the future!”

About Jitske Fastenau and the Brick-method: www.brick-method.com

About the High Tech NL Young Professional program: <http://www.hightechnl.nl/mensen/young-professionals>